Guidelines of the Alliance for Monetary and Financial Stability

Economics and business professors who were formerly employed by the Deutsche Bundesbank founded the "Alliance for Monetary and Financial Stability" in Frankfurt am Main on June 14, 2013.

A member of the Alliance for monetary and financial stability can be anyone who is committed to the objectives of the Alliance, is recommended by at least two members, and is elected by the general assembly with a three-quarters majority.

The main aim of the Alliance is to promote the culture of monetary and financial stability among the general public.

The members of the Alliance are convinced that a vibrant culture of stability in a monetary union not only requires appropriate action by politicians and central banks, but must also be well understood and firmly anchored in the population.

The members of the Alliance inform the public on the principles, rules and importance of a stable monetary and financial order through their teaching and research activities as well as by engaging with the media. Events at universities and research institutions that are open to the public are particularly suitable for this purpose.

The names of the members of the Alliance can be found on its homepage at www.aktionskreis-stabiles-geld.de.
